

The Finn & Quinley Story

Finn and Quinley McInerney were born in August of 2004 – Finn was a little red-headed boy, and Quinley was a tiny blonde girl. They were 15 weeks premature and only survived for a week. While making the twins' final arrangements, Danielle and Michael McInerney started the Finn and Quinley Memorial Foundation, choosing to benefit the DCH Regional Medical Center and Northport Medical Centers' neonatal intensive care units. Generous donations came flowing in, and Danielle began putting that money to work on behalf of DCH's tiniest patients.

Danielle chose DCH because of the consistent love and support her family received from the staff at Northport Medical Center. "My husband and I are both from big cities, and our relatives initially thought we should be at a larger hospital," Danielle says. "We quickly learned that although Tuscaloosa is a relatively small community, the exceptional care and concern of everyone at DCH make it a destination hospital."

In 2012, Danielle came to The DCH Foundation with the realization that together, they could do more. So once again, Danielle and Michael entrusted the care of their babies – this time their legacy – to DCH. At that time, The Finn & Quinley Memorial Foundation merged with The DCH Foundation to become The Finn & Quinley Infant and Children's Fund. This fund has expanded to provide continually improving care to our neonatal, well-baby, and pediatric patients by supporting technological advances, professional education for our nursing staff, and patient and family assistance for those who need it.

The symbol of a lost loved one is the butterfly – but for the McInerneys, two very special butterflies, one always red, the other yellow. These butterflies are now the symbol of Finn and Quinley. This wall is a celebration of life, representing the joy and love we have for all babies, whether we are able to hold them in our arms or only in our hearts.

The Finn & Quinley Recognition Wall at DCH Regional and Northport Medical Centers

The birth of a new baby is - for most - a time of great joy - a life changing event that lasts in minds and hearts forever.

The Finn & Quinley Recognition Wall at DCH Regional and Northport Medical Centers provides an opportunity for family and friends to honor the lives of those they care about by purchasing commemorative tiles customized with the names of their loved ones.

For some, the passing of a child is a time of great sadness that is felt, not only by the family but also by our staff of tenderhearted doctors and nurses. If they passed away, a symbolic pair of butterflies (the Finn & Quinley Infant and Children's Fund logo) honor the life of that person. The wall is not age-specific, so anyone may be honored regardless of age.

At The DCH Foundation, we are proud to be a part of creating precious memories and honored to help celebrate the joy of precious loved ones with you.
